ARE IN OPEN REVOLT

An Uprising in the Orange River Districts of Cape Colony.

Gen. Brabant Has Been Ordered to the Front-Gen. French Routed a Force of 2,500 of the Enemy at Thorndale.

London, Dec. 22 .- "We understand that private reliable advices have been received in London," says the Daily Mail, "to the effect that virtually all the districts of Cape Colony in the vicinity of the Orange river are in more or less open revolt, and that there is likely to be sharp fighting on a rather large scale before the invasion is crushed. The tactics of the Boers in rallying as many as possible of the Dutch in the back country to their cause are proving successful."

Washington, Dec. 22.-Secretary Hay's action in instructing Mr. Conger to sign the joint note was approved by the cabinet at its meeting.

It is learned here that the agreement signed by the ministers of the powers at Peking, naming conditions as preliminary to the negotiations of peace terms, contains a demand for the severest penalties that China can high officials believed to be responsible for the Boxer outrages. This refers particularly to the 11 prominent Chinese nobles whose names have been mentioned in the press dispatches as those whom some of the nations contended should be executed. Our government has persistently held to the position that penalties should not be inflicted on the Chinese government which she was unable to carry out. The demand for the death penalties was stricken out of the agreement, and that for the severest penalties possible inserted.

DECLARED OFF.

The Strike of the Telegraphers of the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe Road Ended.

Houston, Tex., Dec. 22.—The strike of the telegraph operators on the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe was called off. It is presumed that there would be issued at once an order calling off the strike on all branches of the Atchison system, but the Order of Railroad Telegraphers' committee has jurisdiction over Texas alone. The strike was inaugurated in Texas 15 days ago. No concessions were asked by the men or offered by the company as a preliminary to calling off the strike. Topeka, Kan., Dec. 22.-President Dolphin, of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, has declared the strike of the operators on the Santa Fe off. All the striking operators here have received orders from President Dolphin that the strike would continue no longer. The operators are beginning to speculate as to whether they will be reinstated in the employ of the company. They now have the permission of the organization to work if they can secure work.

Senator Lodge Explains the Amendments to Hay-Pauncefote Treaty.

England Is Asked to Accept Reservation of Rights in Time of War Which She Granted in the Suez Treaty.

Washington, Dec. 22. - Senator Lodge, who had charge of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty in the senate, Friday made the following statement:

"The senate amendments are very important, but they are also very simple, although there seems to be some misunderstanding in regard to them, owing to the fact that all t debates upon the treaty took place behind closed doors. Now that the amendments and votes have been made public by order of the senate. it may not be amiss to explain them

"The American people desire to build, and mean to build and control, the isthmian canal. They recognize that the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, made 50 years ago under conditions no longer existent, stands in the way. They have no desire to clear it from their path in a violent fashion by formally denouncing it or by passing laws and taking action in contravention of its provisions. They wish to remove it by amicable arrangement in a suitable and becoming manner. The Hay-Pauncefote treaty was framed for this object. The senate is part of the treaty-making power. and treaties sent to it for ratification are not strictly treaties, but projects for treaties. They are still inchoate.

"In the exercise of its undoubted rights, without the slightest reflection upon any one, and without a shadow of hostility to a friendly nation, the senate, continuing the negotiations begun by Mr. Hay, offers three new propositions to England. They ask her to omit the clause inviting other nations to adhere, which does not touch her at all. They ask her to conform to our desires by agreeing in unmistakable language to the supersession of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty by the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, which is the whole purpose of the negotiation. They ask her finally to accept in this treaty the reservation of rights in time of war which she granted Turkey in the present possessor of Egypt, she is now herself the beneficiary.

"These propositions are all essential to American interests, and are fair, reasonable, friendly and in no possible sense offensive. England's interest in having the canal built, be it great or small, is second only to that of the United States, for she alone has, like the United States, large possessions in North America and both an Atlantic and a Pacific coast. We agree that all vessels of appropriated. The total is approxicommerce and of war shall pass mately $60,000,000, of which about through the canal on the same terms as our own, and in war between other powers we agree to preserve the neutrality of the canal toward all belligerents. In deference to the wishes of Nicaragua and Costa Rica in regard to this treaty, and not to any we may hereafter make with them, we relinquish the right to erect permanent fortifications, and, although there is no need of such fortifications, the right to erect them is an important right, and its relinquishment goes to the last verge of concession.

"The vast expense of the canal is ours, the maintenance and defense of it are ours, and the American people will never permit a canal there which they do not control, because the defense of the United States overrides every other consideration. In building and maintaining the canal we assume that burden by which the whole world will benefit, and if we bear the burden alone, the power and control must be ours alone also. "We desire to dispose of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty in the most friendly way possible. We are most averse to any other disposition of it. England does not intend to go to war with us to prevent our building of the canal, and if it is physically possible to build it we mean to do so in any event.

"Under these circumstances we are very clear that it is as much for England's interests as ours to accept the new propositions in the friendly spirit in which they are offered, and thus end a controversy over an outworn treaty which is only a stumbling block to both nations. It is not to be doubted that the English ministers, whose ability, experience and reputation are known to all the world, will duly weigh all these considerations and rightly comprehend the purpose of the senate amendments and the spirit in which they are offered." Senator Frye's Wife Dead. Washington, Dec. 22.-The wife of Senator Frye, of Maine, died sudden-

A TOTAL LOSS.

Schooner Jennie Hall Stranded Near Cape Henry-Captain and Three Men Were Drowned.

Cape Henry, Va., Dec. 22.-By telephone from Dan Neck Station it is learned that the schooner Jennie Hall, which stranded eight miles south of Cape Henry at 4 a. m., will be a total loss. The captain and two men are drowned. The bodies are not yet recovered. Four nearly died from exposure, but were rescued in the breeches buoy. One man still clung to the mizzen crosstree. By heroic efforts the life savers succeeded in getting the sailor into buoy, and he was hauled safely off. One of the surfmen was washed out of the lifeboat, but was rescued. The weather is rainy, with a light fog and a northwest gale blowing 50 miles an hour.

The sailors reached the deck just in time to seize the dory, which wes being towed astern, and, drenched and shivering, made their way to Old Point. The name of the vessel which struck them is unknown. The vessels of the North Atlantic squadron sent boats Suez convention, and of which, as the to the assistance of the shipwrecked crew.

RIVER AND HARBOR BILL.

It Carries Approximately $60,000,-000, the Second Largest Appropriation on Record,

Washington, Dec. 22.-The river and harbor bill was completed Friday night, and Chairman Burton gave out a statement showing the amounts $23,000,000 is in direct appropriation and about $37,000,000 in the authorization of contracts for continuous work. Compared with former river and harbor bills, the present one is the second largest on record, and after the senate has added amendments it is expected to be well up to, if not ahead of, all previous records. The bill of 1900 carried $39,958,165, and that of 1897, which was the largest on record, carried $72,275,954.

EX-GOV. WOLCOTT DEAD.

The Former Executive of Massachusetts Passed Away at His Home in Boston.

Boston, Dec. 22.-Former Gov. Wolcott died at 3:40 p.m. Friday. Roger Wolcott was born in Boston, July 13, 1847, the son of J. Huntington and Cornelia Frothingham Wolcott. He is a descendant of the Roger Wolcott who was second in command in the expedition of Sir William Pepperell against Cape Breton in 1745, which resulted in the capture of Louisburg. Another ancestor was Oliver Wolcott, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. Both of these Wolcotts were governors of Connecticut.

Receiver Appointed For the American National Bank, of Baltimore, Md.

Washington, Dec. 22.-The comptroller of the currency appointed J. Frank Aldrich temporary receiver of the American National bank, of Baltimore, Md. This bank, it is stated, has suffered a large shrinkage in deposits and has sustained some heavy losses, which involved its capital and surplus and reduced greatly its cash resources. The condition of its assets is such that the loss to depositors probably will be small. At a meeting of the clearing house of Baltimore it was decided that, in view of the condition of the bank, no further credit could be extended to it.

FADS AND FASHIONS.

Some of the Many Pretty Novelties That Are Seen in Up to Date Costumes.

Something unique in the way of a dress trimming is made of cloth in the pale biscuit shade, cut in Grecian and other odd conventional designs in two or three different widths, the narrow ones stitched on the wider, giving a raised effect, says the New York Sun. The ribbons, this season are charmingly varied in flowered, striped and being especially soft and rich. Cloth lace, or an applique trimming of cream cloth finished around the edges with a small white silk cord, is one of the popular decorations for gowns and revers of the fancy coats.

spotted designs, the pannette ribbons

Girdle belts made of ribbon are one of the novelties in the shops. They are wide, pointed in front, and made on a boned foundation to keep them in shape. Tiny little gold knob buttons fasten the plaits, laid in the ribbon in vertical lines.

Gold cloth made with a design in the weaving is one of the latest novelties. Belting of panne velvet polka dotted with white and edged with gold cord serves a good purpose with flannel waists worn with tailor-made skirts, but the panne or the spots should match the waist in color.

A popular garniture for gowns and opera cloaks is made of chiffon to represent flowers attached to embroidered stems. Violets are not too complicated for this branch of industry, and they are really very natural in coloring and effect. Taffeta silk is also used for various kinds of flowers for evening

White satin seems to be the popular coat lining for both short fancy coats and long garments for evening or day

One of the latest varieties of hat pins is an irregular shaped pearl, set around with diamonds and filagree gold if it is genuine. But the imitation pearl set with rhinestones is a much cheaper edition.

Pannes in Persian colorings and designs are much used for waists, as also are figured velveteens.

Castor gloves are very fashionable for street wear, and then there are the heavy dressed kid gloves with pique stitched seams.

There seems to be no limit to the varied possibilities of tucks, and now we have them in fur, as if it were not expensive enough without doubling up in its value in that manner. Breitschwanz is the one pelt which can be successfully manipulated in this way, but the plan adds very little if any to its beauty. The short blouse jacket is shown in one style, with three tucks at either side of the front beginning at the shoulder and narrowing in at the waist line.

BRASS BEDSTEADS.

A., Chattanooga. chamois skin to keep them polished, are astonished until they learn that this is due to the surface of the metal being covered with lacquer, which keeps it from tarnishing, says the New York Tribune. The secre; of this lacquer we learned from the orientals, and the English seem to have learned it better than we did. At all events, the lacquer on English brass bedsteads lasts much longer than that on American bedsteads. This lacquered surface requires some care. It should not be scratched, and in damp weather it should be wiped off with a chamois or dry flannel duster, as dampness is always injurious to lacquer. It is needless to say it should never be touched with a damp cloth. When brass furniture is moved it should be very carefully covered with cheesecloth or some soft cloths, as a lacquered surface of metal is as delicate as one of polished wood, and as easily injured by being scratched. Lamps when lacquered soon become defaced and must be relacquered. This is because of the heat of the light. The relacquering of such small pieces does not cost much. Fine sets of brass which are continually subject to heat must be scoured with rottenstone and chamois skin in the painstaking, oldfashioned way, as these pieces will not bear lacquering any length of

To Raise Palms from Seeds.

To start palm seeds is an easy matter. Place half a dozen seeds in a sixinch pot, covering them so they will be about two inches below the surface. They should then be well watered, and the soil should be kept fairly moist continually until the little seedlings push their way up. The soil should never be allowed to dry out, nor should it be kept soggy. Another good plan is to place all the seeds in a box of moist sand and examine them every few days. Those that burst and begin to sprout may be potted, if well started, in small pots. It should be borne in mind that the embryo, or seed, leaves of palms are usually entirely different in form from the true, or character, leaves which come later. WEDDING AT AN ARMY POST.

How a Young Lieutenant and His Wow She Got Her Bashful Admires Bride Were Wedded on New Year's Day at an Arizona Fort.

In an article in Woman's Home Companion, entitled "Holiday Week at an Army Post," Harriet A. Lusk describes as follows a military wedding performed at an isolated post in Arizona:

"Such unexpected things happen in military life! We nearly lost our breath when in the midst of our gayety an order came for Mr. Knox to go to were to be married next June, and he insisted upon leaving her a bride in-

Soft rugs carpeted the walk to the gate, and the guests had been received. A tiny girl and boy tastefully gowned formed a fair advance-guard for the party, and scattered flowers on the way from the Southwick home to the chapel. The stage was a mass of ferns, and in the center was a small silk American flag. Here and there on the walls of the chapel were military ensigns and guidons in beautiful colors, and a portiere of flags hid the balcony, behind which a stringed quartette struck sweet

"The ceremony was performed in front of the stage, and the solemn. words of the ritual were spoken to the strains of the hidden music, Through the ribboned aisle the bridal procession retreated and marched to the colonel's home. The regimental soldiers stood in attention about the lawn, while Mr. and Mrs. Knox, beneath the national ensign, received congratulations before refreshments were served."

At this, relates the Chicago Chronicle, there was a storm of protest and much laughter, but when the proposition was made to "swear in" each narrator to tell the "whole truth and nothing but the truth" there was much conscious and blushing dissent.

"Methinks you all protest too much!" said the first speaker. "I am sure that nearly every one of you are thinking this very minute of how you helped on your respective husbands Life. at the crucial moment. Well, Mrs. Blank, am I not right?" she added, turning suddenly to her vis-a-vis across the table, whose expressive face veranda, which was transformed into showed inward appreciation of the charge. "How was it with you? I feel sure that you assisted your William-how did you do it?" And after a little urging and the promise from there the bridal party formed after her neighbors to be equally frank Mrs. Blank began her confession.

"I knew that William really liked me," she began.

"Oh, of course, that goes without saying," laughed the self-constituted grand inquisitor.

"Otherwise I would never have dreamed of helping him," continued Mrs. Blank, with dignity, "but he was very slow! For months I waited, but he went on, sending me flowers and taking me to drive and devoting himself to me at dances without any result. You see, the poor fellow hadn't the courage to risk a refusal!" she explained, half defiantly - evidently rather repenting her confidences-but her listeners nodded understandingly, and she went on. "So I concluded I would first show him that there would band played in welcome, and squads of be no risk, you understand. I thought and thought how to manage it, and finally an idea struck me. I wrote a supposed epistle to a girl I knew out west who had been my most intimate friend at school and of whom I had often spoken, and left a sheet from the letter in a book that I lent William to read. As I thought he might hesitate to read a private letter, I began the page with his name. I knew no man would resist that if he were in love and wanted to know what a girl thought of him. I wrote as if my ally say I liked him, I said enough to make him feel pretty sure he could have me. Anyway, it answered. Wiltold him all about it!"

A Christmas Greeting,

Guzzane on this the last Christmas of the Nineteenth Century! It has been the most remarkable one hundred years in the world's history. To have lived in such a splendid and luminous age was exultation. What giant strides towards that condition of things of which prophets foretold, bards sang, dreamers and mystics wrote, and Christ spoke. The scores of life are better understood; the causes of crime and suffering are known, the remedies are applied with tender and loving hands as the Master taught in sweet sympathy.

It is a splendid heritance that Nineteen-hundred leaves to the Twentieth Century. The world redeemed from gross ignorance; from cruel wrong, wherein the power of might usurped the throne of Right. Time and space are no more—there is no limitation upon human accomplishment. The narrowing lust of gold" is here, but close beside the generous, open hand supplying all the wants of those who cry for help.

Whatever is accomplished in the Century to come, must be due to the lessons mught by this ... But there can be no permanent improvement in any material affairs that does not begin and end in the teachings of Christ. The world should lay that truth to its heart right now, as it faces the future, and studies the conditions that confront it. Let it be our aim and object to impress this apon the hearts and consciences of men during the small part of the next century, that we are among men.

These thoughts THE NEWS gives to its readers on this Christmas day. And says to them and to all who live and toil: "Forgotten be the animosities and heartburnings of the past, sacred be the trust committed to our care and bright the vision of the future."

Forget your troubles and put on a happy smile for Christmas. This is a time to minimize your sorrows and remember your joys, past and present.

To the Voters of Bourbon County

I desire to say, that I have been eaching in the county for eight years. I began teaching when seventeen years of age and have used my salary in educating myself. Being now thrown entirely upon my own resources, the salary of a county school is not sufficient to support me and I have announced as a candidate for Superintendent of County Schools. Your influence and support will be gratefully appreciated. I am teaching now and it will be imposible for me to canvass the county before Spring; however I will try to see every voter at some proper time. Thanking you for anything you will do for me.

I am, very respectfully.

eyesight is failing and should have immediate attention: Impearial spectacles and eyeglasses have perfect lenses, always perfectly centred and made of purest material, set in frames of the highest elasticity and consequently of greatest durability, united with the utmost lightness and elegance. When both frames and lenses are scientifically fitted by Dr. C. H. 'owen's system they always give satisfaction for they are perfect. Never buy cheap spectacles, nor of men who do not know how to fit them. You will get poorly adjusted spectacle or poor, imperfect lenses, and are better off without any glasses than with either of these defects. STRANGER TOOK AND YE TOOK ME IN. HE Auberts were taking a step up in life. From being birds of passage in a tenement house, free to flit by the midnight train to Canada whenever fancy dictated, they were evolving into landowners and had bought a house. It was a very little house on the hillside, which overlooked the village where Jean Aubert and Delia and Henri worked in the mills, but two acres of land went with it, and already the little Auberts were growing rosy and fatlegged. Hitherto the gates of Paradise had been effectually closed to them, and with woods and fields no more than half a mile away, and the whole street on the other side lined with green lawns to tempt their very eyes, they had never till now kicked up their heels on grass.

Peeping out of the two street windows of the yardless double tenement house which had been their home, or playing softly round the doorstep on hot summer evenings, they had looked like a family of mice, noiseless, bright-eyed and shy. Mamma Aubert farmer on the land adjoining old De- to be had for the cutting on the hill eved, decent French-Canadian voman, seldom seen outdoors, but often of an afternoon by the window with a bald-headed baby in her arms and a rather hectic flush upon her cheeks. In school the little Auberts wore perennial high-necked, long-sleeved, pink calico aprons, and still maintaining their mouse-like manners did excellent work. The boys were black-eyed rogues, but like true Frenchmen took kindly to instruction in cap-doffing and excuse-me. They all had a gift for penmanship and drawing, and Robert Aubert was the artist of the school.

The year before the horse was bought the two eldest children had Delia's deft fingers earned enough money to pay her board, clothe herself tastefully and have a little margin left, which she laid by for furniture for the room which they were going to call parlor.

"Why," said Delia, "why-I thought he was poor! He said: 'A few little things to please the children.' Where shall we put them all? I know, here in the parlor, and oh, Robert, bring the tree in there, and we'll hang up evergreens, and nobody'll mind if there isn't any furniture; they'll be looking at the tree."

At seven o'clock that Christmas evening the parlor door was opened and the Auberts, with mingled feelings of self-denial and expectancy, were marshaled in.

"There are presents!" they gasped. Where were Robert's angel and the eggshells? "There are candles! And candy! And stars! And shining balls!" And from awe-struck surprise they mounted by rapid strides into ecstasy, and from gasping took to shouting. There were dolls and dishes and a rocking-horse. There was a pasteboard village and a Noah's ark and a box of blocks. In bewildered surprise Robert saw a paint-box and a parcel of drawing paper labeled "Robert." Delia fairly turned pale at finding that a small package for her contained a little silver watch and chatelaine. Henri was speechless over an order for a bicycle.

"What does this mean?" demanded

Jean Aubert, sternly. "It means," said Pierre Demarest, standing before him, "that I not a poor man. My brothers make one big mistake. They think me come to live on them-I buy them out if I like! "And now I go away," said the old fellow; "to-night, right now. I stay two weeks. I fin' my frien's. They know me when I come again-remember ol' Pierre! You pay your mortgage. Be happy."

And in spite of their remonstrances, as if he would not burden them with having to express their gratitude or did not care to see them try, he then and there, before that wonderful tral, is being built in the most thorevening was half over, girded on the old coat, seized his faded bag and trudged off manfully in the moonlight, vanishing as suddenly as he

I shall not try to describe the emotions that possessed the Aubert family on that never-to-be-forgotten Christmas night and during the succeeding week. The older ones walked in a dream, doubting whether that precious piece of paper which was to set them securely on the plane of independence might not be worthless, until word came from New York that, it was genuine and Jean might get $2,000 for it any day. Which he did-2,000 one-dollar bills, and sat up all night with his wife counting it over and trying to realize the magnitude of his good fortune.

"The fact is, sir," he said next day when he went to discharge the mort gage, "my wife and I never saw so much money before in all our lives. We wanted to sort of take it in. HEIGHT TO BE TEST.

Railroad Officials Favor Abandonment of Age Limit in Children.

Would Have Use of Half-Fare Tickets Based on Inches, Not Years-Difficulties Met with Under Present System.

It is possible that before long children raveling on railroads may be charged for at so much per inch, instead of selling them tickets upon the time-honored age rule. Officers of the big transportation companies whose lines terminate in Chicago say that one of the most difficult questions they and their conductors have to face is the age limitin selling tickets and collecting fares for children. At least one general passenger agent is of the opinion that children should be charged for according to their height. He says it would be much easier to regulate the difference in rates by this method than by accepting the words of parents and others regarding ages.

"There is absolutely no way in which railroads may discriminate between children over and under age," this official said. "We are entirely dependen" upon the word of parents, guardians and others in charge of the minors The present rule is that children under five years shall be carried free. Between five and ten years half fare is chargeo. Now, a child under the fiveyear limit may be unusually large for its age, and the conductor may suspect an over age. Again a child more than five may be unusually small for the age and be passed, beating the railroad out of a half fare. If we should abolish this rule and go by height I don't see that any greater hardship would be worked and the requirement would be more fair to the transportation companies."

The question is of such importance that it will be considered by the general passenger agents of the roads east of Chicago and west of Buffalo and Pittsburgh.

RAILROAD TO HUDSON BAY.

The Plan of Years Now Being Actually Executed-To Be Ready in Three Years.

The talk and plans of decades have finally taken form and a railway connecting the great lakes with Hudson bay is now actually under construction. Consul Brush, at Niagara Falls, has sent to the state department a valuable report on the subject, from which it appears that the line plunges hundreds of miles through an unbroken wilderness, with no cities, towns or even villages to afford traf-

In fact, only Indian guides and hunters have ever attempted to penetrate the great wilderness to the north. Nevertheless, the railroad which is known as the Algoma Cenough manner possible, with the best equipment available, able to stand almost any strain upon it, and capable of good service for years to come. Eighty-five-pound steel rails are used and the locomotives are of enormous size, weighing 135 tons when equipped for traffic.

The engines are so massive that railway companies were afraid of the strain on bridges and they were delivered from Chicago to Sault Ste. Marie by the lake route on steam fer-

The new railway starts at Sault Ste. Marie. Ground was broken less than 90 days ago, but already 25 miles of road are completed and in use, and the railway is pushing forward at the rate, of half a mile a day. It is expected that it will require three years to complete the road.

"The person before me is threatened with a sad calamity,' were her first words. Then, although she could not possibly have known that I knew of her. or had the slightest intention of consulting her, she gave me a clear, true outline of my past life."

"Very strange, indeed," said Blanche. "It was, to be sure," went on Mrs. courage to ask her what she meant by that allusion.

"'You are about to take a voyage,' said she, after a moment's reflection, 'and, while you may come back safely, I am afraid you will die away from your native land.'

"'Would you advise me to stay at home?' I asked her.

"'No, you need not try to escape your fate,' she answered. 'In fact, your impulse to go away from America is a step in the right direction, and if you have to die it would be better to die For God's sake let's renounce it all and while trying to atone for that which turn about and try to live pure, honoryou regret so sincerely.' '

"How very awful!" exclaimed Blanche. The recital had really excited her beyond description.

"Her warning has brought all the good there is in me to the surface," declared Mrs. Goddard. "I want to stop and disentangle myself from the toils my sin has wound around me." The speaker's voice dwindled away into silence. Then she seemed to make a resolve to be more candid than ever.

"Blanche," 'she sighed, "I have not told you the worst yet. I have wronged you more than I did him-more than I ever did anybody in my life, because Goddard's lips. you were so young at the time, and I struck you from the dark."

"Wronged me?" The girl drew herself up with a sudden intuition of what was coming. 'Yes, you, my poor, innocent child. When the major first began to come to see me it was simply that he might pour his love for you into a sympathetic ear. He was madly in love with you. He could talk of nothing but his beautiful ward. I had heard of his riches, and I at once set about to dethrone you. I laid the most adroit plans to secure his attentions. I used all the wiles in my power. It was an awful struggle, but the prize was a big one in my sight. I was heartily tired of the sordid life I was leading and was fired with the ambition to be a social leader -to use the arts I felt I was born with. When he fell it was very sudden. Then I pretended that I was trying to retreat because he was rich and I was poor, but that only inflamed him all the more, as I knew it would. You know the rest. Now, you may hate me. for if it had not been for me he would have gone on loving you, and-and you would have made him happier than I can, for-oh, Blanche, I know your seeret, and that has been part of my punishment! I have ruined both your life and his."

Therefore, remember that-if I should die abroad (you see, I cannot forget that woman's uncanny prediction)-I want you to console him at once by marrying him as soon as he asks you.'

"Oh, this is simply dreadful!" Blanche uncovered her white face and stared her back into the crafty cautiousness fixedly at the woman.

"I know it," was the answer, "but see that you keep what I have told you to I have always had an ideal-a woman yourself. Blanche, you cannot deny that you have loved him a long time."

Talley followed, his manner solicitous and regretful. Goddard left the two together while he went out to give an order to the coachman.

That Was Why P. T. Barnum Had a Artificial Appendage on His Gorilla.

Some one had told the story of the man who interrupted Phineas T. Barnum's temperance lecture to ask the famous showman whether alcohol injured its consumer more internally than externally. "That," said the veteran editor, relates the Brooklyn Eagle, "makes me think of the time when, as a reporter for a New York paper, I was sent to the museum to write up an alleged gorilla which Barnum had imported. Paul Du Chaillu was a good friend of mine in those days and before I tackled the assignment I got him to coach me on the subject of gorillas. At the museum Barnum's agent showed me an ape of respectable pro portions, which he proudly insisted was the only gorilla that had ever survived captivity. I looked the specimen over carefully and, turning to the agent remarked that somebody had imposed upon the management of the Barnum menagerie. 'That's no gorilla,' I added. The agent got excited. 'What d'ye mean?' he asked. 'If it isn't a gorilla what in thunder is it?'

"To this I replied that I was there to receive information, not to give it. Then he sent for Barnum, who was highly indignant when told of my skepticism. 'Eh? What's this? Not a gorilla?' he exclaimed; then, as though he wished to impress upon me a proper sense of my combined ignorance and presumption he asked slowly and with suitable emphasis:

"'Young man, what do you know about gorillas?' "I know all that Paul Du Chaillu knows,' I explained, 'and what he doesn't know has yet to be learned. This staggered Barnuta a trifle, but he came at me again with a request that I specify my reason for declaring that the ape was not a gorilla. 'Be cause it has a tail,' I replied, 'and gorillas have none.' 'It is a gorilla none the less,' insisted Barnum, 'and -let me tell you in confidence-that prefer to have their gorillas with tails out without explaining why, to the rather than without them!""

The Worth of a Name.

Polonius' advice, neither a borrower nor a lender be, has a deeper application than the pocketbook. There are good name does enrich the thief or borrower, Shakespeare to the contrary not withstanding. Many a questionable business or political scheme thrives because an honored name has been fraudulently taken, or carelessly lent to the list of trustees. Many a doubtful entertainment "goes" because some prominent lady has disliked to refuse her name as a patron. The consequences of such thoughtless good nature are often humiliating and discreditable. Moreover, the private citizen cannot publicly renounce responsibility, as a great pianist once did in a somewhat sensational manner. Von Bulow had agreed to play a certain piano during a tour through the United States, and at the first concert observed a large board with the maker's name fastened to the instrument. Enraged at this reminder of his servitude, Von Bulow took counsel with his violinist and vocalist. In an interfloor and stamped upon it. The violinist solemnly kicked it, and the vocalist proceeded to dance upon it. 'The sec-"My God! Mrs. Goddard," exclaimed ond part of the programme then went

That Strain Again.

For domestic use, the scene of this story may be changed to suit individual fancy. Niagara Falls would not be a judicious selection; not that American ladies cannot talk, but a moral overdrawn defeats its own purpose. Tourists who go to see Bolton Abbey, in England, usually push on to Posforth Gill waterfall, which is near by. On one occasion an old guide accompanied a party of very garrulous ladies and a solitary gentleman to the head of the gorge where the water comes down. The gentleman became somewhat tired after awhile, possibly from sightseeing, and remarked: "My good fellow, how much farther is it vet to the fall?" "Just a minute or two, sir," the guide answered. "As soon as the ladies stop talking you will hear the roar."-Youth's Companion. Something Wrong.

"Now, John, see here!" she began, with set jaw. "I must have $20 to-day." "All right," said John, promptly, "here it is."

THE QUESTION OF DIET.

Claim That the Secret of Longevity Is to Eat What You Please.

"I am inclined to be a little dyspeptie," said one of a party of gentlemen who had just taken seats in a restaurant, "and I used to be very careful about my diet; but since moving to my present place, down the river, I have had all my preconceived ideas in that regard looked higher than a kite. There is a big canning factory on the gulf coast not far from my plantation,"he continued, "and among other things they put up immense quantities of shrimp. All the light work is done by young women, and their favorite lunch consists of shrimp and buttermilk."

"Shrimp and buttermilk! What a murderous combination!" exclaimed one of the party, shuddering, relates the New Orleans Times-Democrat.

"That's what I thought myself at first," said the gentleman from down the river. "It seemed like sudden death, but it isn't. On the contrary, the girls are all the personification of health. I never saw such rosy cheeks, bright eyes, and dimpled arms! Why, the packing room is a regular bower of beauty! And they eat a great deal, too! A quart of shrimps and half a gallon of buttermilk is considered a mere snack. "But that wasn't the only thing that shook my faith in dieting rules," the planter went on. "The luggermen down there are the hardiest fellows in the world. They have muscles like gnarled oak, and they don't know the meaning of sickness or fatigue. During the season they generally work until late at night; then they come in and eat a tremendous supper and go directly to bed. The supper consists of fat bacon, fried; cold cornbread sopped in the grease, and blackjack molasses. They seldom eat fish or oysters, because they get tired of them. To top off with each man drinks from two to four big tincups of coffee, strong enough to float cannon balls. Then they lie down and sleep the sleep of happy, peaceful infants. In the morning they get up with the flush of health on their cheeks and devour more fat bacon."

"Good Lord!" said a sallow man, at the other side of the table.

"That's prejudice talking!" retorted the planter; "those excellent people have discovered the secret of long life, which is to eat what you please. Ignore dyspepsia and it grovels before you. Waiter, please bring me some pickled pig's feet and strawberry icecream."

A Few Suggestions Concerning House Decoration and Scientific Cooking.

A woman who believes strongly in the unconscious influence of color declares she would never have a room decorated in red, which is only good. she claims, to counteract the bad effects of blue, but even in that case pink on because I knew the people would is preferable. Stating her objection, artist with whom she was advising about the decoration of her home, he at once replied that her dislike was but natural, as she was of a brunette type, and of course greens and yellows were a much more fitting background for her beauty. He further added that it was the cold beauty of the blonde which was enhanced by the warmth of red surroundings. Without ever having made a study of this branch of art. some women instinctively choose only the coloring suited to their style, carrying it even so far as to show a decided preference for china of the tones to blend with their complexions; few brunettes, for instance, will admire the brilliant shades of turquoise blue with which much china is decorated, but whole dinner sets of it are bought by blondes, says the New York Post. The cookery of the present day, says a prominent physician, is conducted so as to eliminate nearly all the vegetable salts. The water in which they have been cooked is thrown away, and when the food is ready for the table it has been deprived of many of its natural properties. Vegetable salts are specially serviceable when given in the form of food, and if we would mitigate Chicago the misery caused by rheumatism and for the various skin diseases we must begin by reform in the kitchen. The vegetables should be prepared, he says, so as to retain all salts, and should become a part of the daily food. The salts were intended for use in the animal economy, and when not supplied the system is robbed of an essential ingredient of food, and will thus more readily respond to discomfort and disease. Vegetable salts help to render certain substances soluble, and stimulate the cells of certain glands to a more active secretion.

To Restore Polish to Brass. If the bars on the bedstead are real brass the polish may be restored in the following manner: Rub them with rotten stone and oil, or any of the good brass polishes that are in the market When clean, burnish them by rubbing with a clean flannel cloth until the brass is hot. After this varnish or shellac them. Nearly all brass beds and brass trimmings on beds are finished with some kind of varnish, and such finishes should be treated with great care. When soiled, wipe with a cloth moistened with oil, and then wipe with a soft, dry cloth .- Maria Parloa, in Ladies' Home Journal.

To Cure a Child of Stuttering. The child that stutters must be gently, patiently and persistently corrected, stopped when he begins to hesitate, made to fill the lungs with air by a deep inhalation, and then to pronounce the difficult syllables until he can do so easily and smoothly. If this course is pursued undeviatingly cure is certain.-Ladies' Home Jour-

Swindle by Pawn Tickets, The most lucrative game which New York swindlers work on the credulous and eager New Yorkers themselves continues to be the bogus or false pawn ticket swindle. It is not unknown in Chicago, and it has so many fine points about it, all of them appealing to the man who loves to make a few dollars on the side, that the rogues who work it are never out of customers. The simplest method is for the swindler to tell his intended victim he has in pawn a ring or gem worth $100. He claims to have pawned it for only $25, and rather than lose the difference between the real value and the amount for which he pawned it he will give the customer a rare bargain. There is $25 due the pawnbroker, besides $5 interest, leaving an equity of $70. He will sell that equity for just half, or $35. After the victim has paid over the $35 and has redeemed the
